Russian Health Care Week was included in the event plan for the Year of Science and Technology in Russia in 2021 (Russian Government Resolution No. 605-r of 13.03.2021) and became one of the main federal events of the Year in the field of medicine.

Russian Health Care Minister Mikhail Murashko:

“This year, Russian Health Care Week is taking place within the Year of Science and Technology in Russia. Over the past year and a half, this country has shown truly magnificent success in developing new therapies, pharmaceutical products, and medical devices. We have not only learned how to develop, but also how to quickly put them into production, which is essential in highly developed technological countries. We have learned how to work with digital technology... I would like to thank the organisers of the exhibition, the manufacturers, developers, and medical organisations that are exhibiting today, for finding the time to present and promote new developments in Russia for the health care industry, despite the difficult period and high workload.”
